

Michael Shea, MD

My name is Michael Shea and I was born in Queens NY but moved around quite a bit growing up. I attended college and medical school in Greenville North Carolina at East Carolina University. I have a younger brother and sister who also live in that area also. I moved to South Carolina to be part of the first class of residents at McLeod's Rural Residency Training Track because of the love for family and rural medicine that developed during my time in medical school. I currently live in Hartsville South Carolina with my significant other McKenna and our two dogs Argy and Kobe. I believe I would make a great fit for this position as I have been heavily involved in organized medicine since medical school. I also am very interested in continuing my career in South Carolina as a rural physician and would very much like to start my involvement with the SCMA now as a resident.
