

Hamza Khan, MD

My name is Hamza Khan and I am second year Internal Medicine resident at Prisma Health Upstate. I was raised in South Carolina and want to give back to a state that given me so many opportunities. I was grew up in Charleston, went to medical school in Columbia, and now completing residency in Greenville. My patient interactions from the Lowcountry to the Upstate has helped me get a better understanding of the disparities in this state. My time as a medical student and resident in this state made me want to get involved at legislative level. My goal as a member of the leadership team is to be an active advocate at the statehouse for residents and physicians. As a medical student in Columbia, I worked closely with our SCMA representative but now I want to pursue a more active role in seeking policy changes. I have lived in this state for over 20 years, and plan to practice as a Hematologist/ Oncologist in the Palmetto State eventually. My goal is to make South Carolina a desirable and attractive place for all physicians to practice.

Outside Interests: Basketball, football, and hiking. I love all things South Carolina Gamecocks. Anxiously awaiting to finally attend games again!
